RATION BOOK NO. 3

War Ration Book No. 3 will be distributed through the mails to more than 120,000,000 individuals beginning late in June and ending July 21, the OPA has announced. Mailmen will leave postcard application forms at every home between May 20 and June 5. The postcard, properly filled out by the head of the house and mailed to OPA, will bring Ration Book No. 3. Prentiss M. Brown, Price Administrator, emphasized that Book No. 3 is a replacement book only, containing a new supply of stamps to take the place of those now being used up. He said if any more rationing programs were necessary, there would be official notice by the government.

COLOR VARIETY REDUCED

Blankets cannot exceed 84 inches in length, except for white cotton sheet blankets, which may be 95 inches long, according to Order M-298 of the WPB. Furthermore, no line of blankets can be made in more than four colors, plus white. In general, only rose, blue, green, and cedar are permitted for solid color blankets.

FOR FURNACE CONVERSION

Home owners who want to convert their oil heating equipment to use other fuels, or to install inside insulation, weatherstripping, storm doors, or storm windows may get FHA loans on a delayed payment plan. Initial payments on loans made between April 20 and September 1 may be deferred until November 1, 1943, if the entire loan is used for such work.

AUTHORIZE BABY CARRIAGES

PLENTY OF BABY CARRIAGES. Over 300,000 baby carriages will be made during the next two months to help meet the anticipated demand for 900,000 this year. In addition, 163,500 strollers, baby-walkers and strollers are authorized for manufacture by June 30.

GET ADDITIONAL GASOLINE

Persons who plan to cultivate Victory Gardens, and whose backyards are inadequate, may get special rations of gasoline in addition to their "A" books, in order to reach plots in the suburbs or the country. Under an amendment to OPA mileage rationing regulations, rationing boards may provide up to 300 additional miles over a period of six months, for Victory Garden travel. To qualify for this allowance, the car owner must show that: he is regularly cultivating a tract of 17500 square feet or more devoted to the production of vegetables; he cannot get to his garden any other way and his labor is necessary for the cultivating of the garden; and that, if possible, he is sharing his car with other gardeners to reduce the amount of mileage that will be necessary.

DISCUSS PROBLEMS OF AMERICAN JAPS

Rotary Hears Friends Service Member from Honolulu

The problem of the American Japanese in the Hawaiian Islands was discussed Tuesday by William Morris Maier speaking at the weekly luncheon of the Bala-Cynwyd-Narberth Rotary Club.

Mr. Maier, a member of the Haverford Friends Meeting, serves with the American Friends Service Committee at Honolulu and will return there shortly.

Although 37 percent of the Hawaiian population is either Japanese or of Japanese ancestry, said Mr. Maier, it was stated recently by J. Edgar Hoover that there has been no sabotage by these American Japanese in the Islands. After Pearl Harbor, of course, the speaker related, all Japanese were detained, including language teachers, Buddhist and Shinto priests.

Mr. Maier expressed the belief that the relocation of Japs on our own West Coast has not been as well handled as that those on the Islands are accordingly more cooperative. He said this was indicated by the fact that when the Army asked for volunteers in Hawaii, more than 3000 Japs responded, while the response to a similar call here was very small.

Program chairman of the day was Dr. Barclay Jones, headmaster of the Friends Central School and the theme of the meeting was International Day.

PUT CORRECT POSTAGE ON YOUR LETTERS

Please weigh your letters—or have them weighed at the post-office—and put the correct amount of postage on them. This urgent request was made this week by Narberth Postmaster Joseph L. Kelley, who pointed out that mail is delayed and the time of the already short-handed post-office staff needlessly wasted by incorrectly stamped letters.

A Poem About
Victory Gardens

Mrs. Laura M. Creighton, 148 Kathmere Rd., Brookline, has been inspired by the tremendous activity of ambitious Victory Gardeners to write the following poem which she titles:

PATRIOTS

In all the yards where dandelions grew
And the grass was velvet green,
You'll find them planting for Victory
The short, the fat and the lean.

There's Pa with a shovel and Ma
With a rake
And Junior and Cis with a hoe
While Grandma stands holding
The garden seeds
For Grandfather's hands to sow.

They'll soon have carrots, some squash and peas
And cabbage for slaw in the bowl.
A radish to garnish the lettuce
they grow
And limas that climb the pole.

Tomatoes so round and luscious and red
Big onions for stews and fries.
The beets will be sweet and filled with blood
Giving strength to the soldier who flies.

"Spuds" so mealy and white as snow
While the "sweets" will grow yellow as gold
They can raise enough corn to can in the fall
Reliving memories to folks of the days of old.

They shall have enough berries
for pies and cakes
And also for jellies and jam.
For food will win this bitter fight
And freedom for Uncle Sam.

V-GARDEN PIONEER
ADVISES OPTIMISTS

Herbert Shearer Was
Speaker at Tuesday
Meeting of Club

At a meeting of the Optimist Club of Haverford and Lower Merion Townships, held Tuesday at Chateau Colotte, Herbert Shearer, Lancaster florist, spoke on Victory Gardens.

Last year Mr. Shearer was appointed by the Haverford Township Council of Defense as chairman of the Victory Garden Committee and has pioneered in this work.

Last year, in addition to the 225 old gardens, there were approximately 235 new gardens planted. When Mr. Shearer made a detailed report on the Haverford Township Victory Gardens to the state he received a letter from Mrs. Ellason, stating that his was the most comprehensive report of all those received.

So far this year, there are over 3500 gardens started, which means that a lot of sod from lawns and week grass from the fields has been turned over, it should not be discarded but be put in piles and allowed to stand until fall, when it can be put back on the ground for fertilizer.

A lot of work is necessary. Mr. Shearer points out, to make successful Victory Gardens, and there are a certain amount of pests to be dealt with. The most common are the cut worms, white grub and Japanese Beetle grub. A small amount of arsenic of lead or lime should be spread over the ground after it has been turned over to kill this grub. To combat the cutworm, especially on tomato plants, a small paper collar should be placed around the plant, not too tightly. This will not choke the plant because as the plant grows the paper will disintegrate and the plant will be strong enough.

Another annoying pest is the Mexican bean beetle which will be found on the underside of the leaf. When sprinkling an insecticide, a porous bag is best, advised the speaker and early morning when the leaves are still wet is the best time to do it.

As most gardens are small, the gardener should try to raise four crops. Carrots and radishes, when planted together will save space, as the radishes grow much faster and will have been picked in time to give room to the carrots. In addition to these vegetables, beans, peas and lettuce are good small garden vegetables. Potatoes take up much space and should not be considered, he believes.

Of course, rabbits and pigeons are discouraging to gardeners and Mr. Shearer suggests that if a few of the vegetables they like are planted around the border, it tends to keep them away from the others.

On the question of watering, Mr. Shearer says that just as the farmer depends on rain, so should the victory gardener cultivate and keep the soil loose around the plants, instead of using too much water, as this gives them a better chance to work.

Mr. Shearer was introduced by N. M. Torelli.

Successful Parenthood

Children's Camping week, April 25 to May 1, has as its main message the reassuring news for parents that all facilities and food rations for the summer's campers have been amply provided for through the co-operation of government agencies with the American camping association.

Travel to and from camp will, of course, have to be spaced but campers will arrive in time to enjoy a full season and will be back home in time to begin school in the fall. Camps are making local arrangements for bus and truck transportation between railroad terminals and the camps themselves. For the rest, the children will enjoy giving "shank's mare" a stiffer than usual workout.

As for rationed foods, federal authorities have instructed camps that, if there are 50 or more persons in the entire camp community they will be classified under Group 3 in the Class of Institutional Users. This means that they may use the ration banking plan for buying rationed foods in advance from wholesalers. Each camper, however, will be expected to take his ration book to camp.

Another bright side of the camp food picture will be the gardens young campers will themselves tend. Many of these will be planted in advance by neighboring farmers, for camp gardens will be more for hobbies or "educational projects" this year and must be producing food by the time camp opens. But there is still plenty to be done in a garden after the plants mature and this season there will be the incentive of healthy appetites to speed the work. Last year a camp in the vicinity of a bean cannery contributed 4,000 cans of beans. This year nothing will be wasted and what the campers don't eat will go to swell the Victory Food bins.

But the greatest contribution camps will make in this restless wartime period is to the emotional health and happiness of children and young people. This will be done largely, of course, through the regular camp program based on plenty of sunshine, good food, relaxation, hiking and learning the skills and crafts which tie one to out-of-door pleasures for a lifetime.

But in addition there will be emphasis on developing the self-reliance children need in greater measure during a war period, when often both parents are engaged in work outside the home. For older boys and girls there will be emphasis on work experience—helping harvest nearby crops, assisting counselors with younger children, learning to be the kind of co-operative citizen we will need in great numbers if the democracies are to withstand, after we have beaten their armies, the regimented minds cultivated by the millions in Fascist countries.

Perhaps the most forceful statement of why children's camps are essential in wartime comes from Paul V. McNutt, Federal Security Administrator and chairman of the War Manpower Commission, who says: "To know that your children are safe from the stresses of war—living, playing, and working in the great outdoors, developing physical vitality, moral stamina, social co-operation, resourcefulness, and self-discipline—this is a great assurance. What more can we parents ask? What more can a nation demand?"

All Quotas Topped in Second War Loan Drive

Lower Merion and Narberth Exceed Goal by More Than $500,000; $42,950 Was Subscribed at Rally Monday

All quotas have been topped in the second War Loan drive in the Lower Merion-Narberth district, it was announced yesterday by Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., district chairman.

Individual bond subscriptions for the Township and Borough as of Wednesday night amounted to $2,060,175 with sales still piling in and the drive continuing until the end of this week.

This sum exceeded the goal for the district in individual subscriptions by more than one-half million dollars. Allocation of purchases made in Philadelphia by local residents, is expected to swell the total further.

In addition to the individual purchases, banks of the area subscribed a total of two and one-half million of the various issues, although this figure will be drastically reduced when final allotments are made to banking institutions by the Federal Reserve Bank of this area.

"I am very happy that Lower Merion and Narberth have done so well in this War Loan campaign," McConnell said. "It reflects great credit upon all those who participated in the drive. When we passed our quota of 1 1/2 million, I privately aimed for 2 million. Now we have exceeded that. I also want to pay a special tribute to the women who worked in the drive. They have done a swell job."

The Ardmore, Haverford, Wynnewood, Gladwyne, Penn. Wynne area obtained individual bond subscriptions amounting to $1,250,500. The Bryn Mawr-Rosemont-Villanova area raised $501,000. Bala-Cynwyd and Merion had $201,000 and Narberth $107,675.

James L. Gardiner, area chairman of the drive for Ardmore, Wynnewood, Haverford and Gladwyne, reported booming sales of bonds this week and very heavy buying on Wednesday. The sale of "E" bonds has been large, he stated with the total of this type comparing favorably with total sales of bond of other types. One issuing agent in the area he said reported sales of $2 "E" bonds last Saturday morning alone.

The Emergency Aid has assisted very materially in the campaign in the Ardmore and nearby communities, he stated, and in its work with private schools.

Carl B. Metzger, Jr., Narberth area chairman, reported approximately 500 individuals had bought bonds in the Borough to date in the drive, amounting to more than $107,000. One Emergency Aid worker, he said, sold $9000 worth of bonds to one family alone. Sales hit 72 bonds in one day with many of the largest denomination bonds being purchased.

A total of $42,950 was subscribed at a Bond rally Monday night at the Ardmore Junior High School. This included the sum of $14,500 which had been raised by the championship Lower Merion basketball team and its coach, William H. Anderson, and was turned in at the meeting. Lloyd A. Unger was in charge of the pledge solicitation.

Two service men who were wounded in action in North Africa described their experiences. A sailor, Wallace Parmeter, whose ship was struck by two torpedoes off Casablanca, related going over the side into oil-covered water, how two dimes in his wallet proved more valuable than $60 in bills in buying food from the Arabs. "Keep on buying bonds to get the equipment to us and we'll put it to good use," he declared. A soldier, Lieut. Kenneth P. Daim, wounded in the American advance to Tangier in Spanish Morocco en route, the first lights he had seen in a city for three months at night. "The big push is coming," he asserted. "Let's all get behind the boys and get it over for good."

The Rev. Rex Stowers Clements, minister of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church, charged that "many people around the Main Line don't yet realize that we are in a war." He declared that the old days of "security, ease and pleasure are gone and they are not coming back." Pointing out that "it's up to us to furnish the equipment to the boys," he asserted that the American people must understand and make sacrifices for the things in which they believe.

The rally was opened with prayer by the Rev. Eugene A. Kelly, Ardmore, and closed with benediction by the Rev. J. Arthur Younger, Bryn Mawr. The Lower Merion High School band, conducted by Bruce C. Beach, head of the instrumental music department, played several selections, and John Raymond, vocal music instructor at the school, led community singing.

Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., chairman of the Lower Merion-Narberth district for the War Loan, presided.

Bryn Mawr Teacher Joins Up With Waves

FATHERS 22,000,000
To millions of families, selective service "arithmetic," which will determine when the head of the family will be given a khaki uniform and a pay check of $50 a month, is being given even closer attention than the mathematical calculations of point rationing.

Under the most recent regulations issued by the selective service administration, fathers will be deferred until all others not in vital war work have been drafted, but according to Paul McNutt, head of the War Manpower Commission, that will be just a matter of a few months.

Mr. McNutt estimates that there are 22,000,000 men between the ages of 18 and 35. This includes those already in uniform. He also figures that only 14,000,000 of these men will be found physically, mentally and morally fit. Of that 14,000,000 a total of 3,200,000 will be deferred because of the vital war work they do in industry and on farms. That leaves 10,800,000, which is approximately the number which the government hopes to have in service by the end of the year.

This "arithmetic" is subject to correction, since it may be found that the ratio are not as high a percentage as estimated, and it does not include the 200,000 or so young men who become 18 each month, but it seems quite certain that the great majority of married men with children will be called before the year is over.

Probably because fathers and mothers constitute by far the largest group of voters in the nation, the house of representatives was almost unanimous in passing a bill to defer fathers until the very end. This bill seems to have little significance, since the selective service administration already had decided to postpone the drafting of men with children as long as possible.

The house bill, however, known as the Kilday bill, does tend to add a little orderliness to the draft system by requiring that men from various classifications be taken on a state-wide basis and that no fathers in a state be taken until all other eligibles have been inducted.

It is quite possible, however, that congressional action on selective service will merely confuse the issue and upset the planning done by the War Manpower Commission. For the Kilday measure doesn't provide for deferment because of occupation and the job of the manpower group is to protect the output of industry and farms and at the same time supply all the men who are needed for the armed forces.

Since the Manpower commission and the selective service administration seem to be trying to work this complex problem out in a way that will protect the American family as long as possible, congressional revisions would seem to be a handicap rather than a help. It might be worth while for congress to investigate the rules for deferment.

One thing, however, which is terminating usefulness.

We've all heard of the husky young man who, when turned down because of his teeth, wanted to know if he was supposed to bite the enemy or to shoot him. I know personally of the case of a football star who, after having caught 40 and 50 yard forward passes the season before, was turned down because his eyesight was poor. Other perfectly healthy young men are being rejected because they are colorblind or because of other minor physical defects.

In many of these cases it is apparent that they might not be able to perform every service which is included in the army and navy curriculum, but there are certainly plenty of jobs in the services which the majority of them could perform adequately.

Mr. McNutt estimated that rejections to the present range from 43 to 50 per cent of those examined. Health records show that we are probably the healthiest nation in the world, but those figures make it appear that the young men of our country are largely cripples.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts of Merion Troop 46 have been working on an interesting project of bookbinding. The work began in a small way with the decision to make some simple scrapbooks for the children in the wards of the Philadelphia General Hospital. Twenty-four girls, under the leadership of their assistant leader, Mrs. Hugh Robertson, made hand-decorated and papers. They sewed a book of blank pages of newspaper in which to paste their collections of animal pictures cut from magazines.

From this beginning, an interest in first editions, autographed copies and similar articles was aroused. Later the girls made a trip to the Bala-Cynwyd Library to see a professional demonstration of bookbinding which was sponsored by several women of the Library Board, including Mrs. Lewis C. Schoenly and Miss Meribah Delaplaine, of Merion, and Mrs. Charles Sykes, of Cynwyd.

Since the demonstration, the Scouts in groups of six or eight, have been working at least one afternoon a week, under the guidance of one of the adults, at mending and re-binding the books which have been donated to the Library for the Victory Book Drive. In this way, the Scouts feel that they have been using a learned skill in giving service to the community.

DR. POLING TO BE VESPER SPEAKER

Noted Minister Has Just Returned from London and Africa

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Pastor of Grace Baptist Temple, Broad and Berks Sts., Philadelphia, will be the guest speaker at a Vespers service on May 9 at 4 P. M. in the Bala-Cynwyd Methodist Church, Levering Mill Rd. near Montgomery Ave., Bala-Cynwyd.

The Rev. Franklin Duncumbe is pastor of the church. Dr. Poling, who is a Major in the Army Chaplains Corps, has just returned from a special mission to London and North Africa, where he saw many men from Philadelphia and its suburbs fighting in the front lines.

The Vespers service will be of a patriotic nature as well as to honor Mothers Day.

When he left the battlefield, Dr. Poling says, the Allies had gained air superiority, and he often saw at dawn "the skies humming with the throb of American planes swarming over the horizons from every direction" and "the forward march of men and machines through the fields bursting with wild flowers of Spring."

By LYTLE HULL

All the great material inventions of the last hundred years, added together, don't compare in human value to the incredible discoveries of the medical scientists.

One hundred years ago we crossed the ocean—when we did cross it—in sailing ships. We crossed the great plains of the West in prairie schooners. When we had to communicate with anyone who was out of earshot, we did so by letters which were carried by stagecoach or by mounted rider. When we played our fields our only power was old Hobbin. When we pulled down the shades in the evening, we lived by lamp or candle light. Stoves and open fireplaces were the only means we had for keeping the house warm, and what we call "plumbing" was undreamed of.

We didn't have electrical appliances in those days, or automobiles or airplanes; but we did have smallpox and diphtheria and bubonic plague and typhus and typhoid and yellow fever, and we didn't know much about preventing them or curing them.

One hundred years ago a man was "middle-aged" at 40 and usually died before he reached the age of 60. If he lived to 80 he was almost a "museum piece." Today we literally play football until we are 40, baseball up to 50, tennis to 60 and golf to 75.

In the last 100 years medical scientists have lengthened the span of life for the adult by from 15 to 25 years. What they have done for the infant is almost more miraculous. Modern hygienic methods have so improved the health of the infant, from the day it is conceived until it reaches manhood, that the human foundation is far more solid and healthy than of old. But still more contributive to long life, are the cures and preventives which these great students have brought to light. A hundred years ago diabetes was fatal. Today it is a bore. Diphtheria was the terror of every parent. Today it is a comparatively unimportant danger. Smallpox is unheard of in civilized society. Typhus has been banished to distant shores. Tuberculosis—once fatal—is now under almost complete control, and the sulfa drugs are performing miracles in the curbs of pneumonia. Medical science is still struggling with the mysteries of dread cancer, but many believe the discovery of its prevention and cure to be but a matter of time.

Some day—someists say—we should be able to prevent inoculation by any germ which is foreign to the human body, and where the human body does become innoculated we should be definitely able to destroy the cause. When that day comes we may live for a hundred years and more, because there should be so few "outside" causes for death. It would seem that accidents, internal troubles, the circulatory system and each other, would be life's only remaining threats. Accidents have gained on us in recent decades; adjustment of the circulatory system has not kept pace with the other advancements; and every few years now we seem to become more danerous to each other's lives and limbs.

Today more and more people appear to be dying from heart troubles. This is because we are living 20 years longer than disease allowed us to a hundred years ago, and the heart has not adjusted itself to this comparatively rapid change. The circulatory system will improve slowly as the fundamental health of humanity becomes more robust through preventive, hygienic and scientific living and eating.

All Quotas Topped in Second War Loan Drive

Lower Merion and Narberth Exceed Goal by More Than $500,000; $42,950 Was Subscribed at Rally Monday

All quotas have been topped in the second War Loan drive in the Lower Merion-Narberth district, it was announced yesterday by Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., district chairman.

Individual bond subscriptions for the Township and Borough as of Wednesday night amounted to $2,060,175 with sales still piling in and the drive continuing until the end of this week.

This sum exceeded the goal for the district in individual subscriptions by more than one-half million dollars. Allocation of purchases made in Philadelphia by local residents, is expected to swell the total further.

In addition to the individual purchases, banks of the area subscribed a total of two and one-half million of the various issues, although this figure will be drastically reduced when final allotments are made to banking institutions by the Federal Reserve Bank of this area.

"I am very happy that Lower Merion and Narberth have done so well in this War Loan campaign," McConnell said. "It reflects great credit upon all those who participated in the drive. When we passed our quota of 1 1/2 million, I privately aimed for 2 million. Now we have exceeded that. I also want to pay a special tribute to the women who worked in the drive. They have done a swell job."

The Ardmore, Haverford, Wynnewood, Gladwyne, Penn. Wynne area obtained individual bond subscriptions amounting to $1,250,500. The Bryn Mawr-Rosemont-Villanova area raised $501,000. Bala-Cynwyd and Merion had $201,000 and Narberth $107,675.

James L. Gardiner, area chairman of the drive for Ardmore, Wynnewood, Haverford and Gladwyne, reported booming sales of bonds this week and very heavy buying on Wednesday. The sale of "E" bonds has been large, he stated with the total of this type comparing favorably with total sales of bond of other types. One issuing agent in the area he said reported sales of 82 "E" bonds last Saturday morning alone.

The Emergency Aid has assisted very materially in the campaign in the Ardmore and nearby communities, he stated, and in its work with private schools.

Carl B. Metzger, Jr., Narberth area chairman, reported approximately 500 individuals had bought bonds in the Borough to date in the drive, amounting to more than $107,000. One Emergency Aid worker, he said, sold $9000 worth of bonds to one family alone. Sales hit 72 bonds in one day with many of the largest denomination bonds being purchased.

A total of $42,950 was subscribed at a Bond rally Monday night at the Ardmore Junior High School. This included the sum of $14,500 which had been raised by the championship Lower Merion basketball team and its coach, William H. Anderson, and was turned in at the meeting. Lloyd A. Unger was in charge of the pledge solicitation.

Two service men who were wounded in action in North Africa described their experiences. A sailor, Wallace Parmeter, whose ship was struck by two torpedoes off Casablanca, related going over the side into oil-covered water, how two dimes in his wallet proved more valuable than $60 in bills in buying food from the Arabs. "Keep on buying bonds to get the equipment to us and we'll put it to good use," he declared. A soldier, Lieut. Kenneth P. Daum, wounded in the American advance to Oran, told of seeing the lights of Tangier in Spanish Morocco en route, the first lights he had seen in a city for three months at night. "The big push is coming," he asserted. "Let's all get behind the boys and get it over for good."

The Rev. Rex Stowers Clements, minister of the Bryn Mawr Presbyterian Church, charged that "many people around the Main Line don't yet realize that we are in a war." He declared that the old days of "security, ease and pleasure are gone and they are not coming back." Pointing out that "it's up to us to furnish the equipment to the boys," he asserted that the American people must understand and make sacrifices for the things in which they believe.

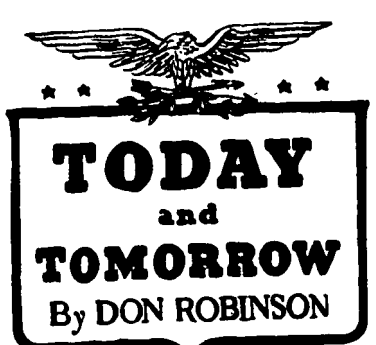

The rally was opened with prayer by the Rev. Eugene A. Kelly, Ardmore, and closed with benediction by the Rev. J. Arthur Younger, Bryn Mawr. The Lower Merion High School band, conducted by Bruce C. Beach, head of the instrumental music department, played several selections, and John Raymond, vocal music instructor at the school, led community singing.

Samuel K. McConnell, Jr., chairman of the Lower Merion-Narberth district for the War Loan, presided.

To millions of families, selective service "arithmetic," which will determine when the head of the family will be given a khaki uniform and a pay check of $50 a month, is being given even closer attention than the mathematical calculations of point rationing.

Under the most recent regulations issued by the selective service administration, fathers will be deferred until all others not in vital war work have been drafted, but according to Paul McNutt, head of the War Manpower Commission, that will be just a matter of a few months.

Mr. McNutt estimates that there are 22,000,000 men between the ages of 18 and 35. This includes those already in uniform. He also figures that only 14,000,000 of these men will be found physically, mentally and morally fit. Of that 14,000,000 a total of 3,200,000 will be deferred because of the vital war work they do in industry and on farms. That leaves 10,800,000, which is approximately the number which the government hopes to have in service by the end of the year.

This "arithmetic" is subject to correction, since it may be found that the unit are not as high a percentage as estimated, and it does not include the 200,000 or so young men who become 18 each month, but it seems quite certain that the great majority of married men with children will be called before the year is over.

CONGRESSIONAL confusion

Probably because fathers and mothers constitute by far the largest group of voters in the nation, the house of representatives was almost unanimous in passing a bill to defer fathers until the very end. This bill seems to have little significance, since the selective service administration already had decided to postpone the drafting of men with children as long as possible.

The house bill, however, known as the Kilday bill, does tend to add a little orderliness to the draft system by requiring that men from various classifications be taken on a state-wide basis and that no fathers in a state be taken until all other eligibles have been inducted.

It is quite possible, however, that congressional action on selective service will merely confuse the issue and upset the planning done by the War Manpower Commission. For the Kilday measure doesn't provide for deferment because of occupation and the job of the manpower group is to protect the output of industry and farms and at the same time supply all the men who are needed for the armed forces.

Since the Manpower commission and the selective service administration seem to be trying to work this complex problem out in a way that will protect the American family as long as possible, congressional revisions would seem to be a handicap rather than a help.

It might be worth while for congress to investigate the rules for deferment.

One thing, however, which is terminating unfitness.

We've all heard of the husky young man who, when turned down because of his teeth, wanted to know if he was supposed to bite the enemy or to shoot him. I know personally of the case of a football star who, after having caught 40 and 50 yard forward passes the season before, was turned down because his eyesight was poor. Other perfectly healthy young men are being rejected by cause they are colorblind or because of other minor physical defects.

In many of these cases it is apparent that they might not be able to perform every service which is included in the army and navy curriculum, but there are certainly plenty of jobs in the services which the majority of them could perform adequately.

Mr. McNutt estimated that rejections up to the present range from 43 to 50 per cent of those examined. Health records show that we are probably the healthiest nation in the world, but those figures make it appear that the young men of our country are largely crippled.

GIRL SCOUT NEWS

The Girl Scouts of Merion Troop 46 have been working on an interesting project of bookbinding. The work began in a small way with the decision to make some simple scrapbooks for the children in the wards of the Philadelphia General Hospital. Twenty-four girls, under the leadership of their assistant leader, Mrs. Hugh Robertson, made hand-decorated and papers. They sewed a book of blank pages of newspaper in which to paste their collections of animal pictures cut from magazines.

From this beginning, an interest in first editions, autographed copies and similar articles was aroused. Later the girls made a trip to the Bala-Cynwyd Library to see a professional demonstration of bookbinding which was sponsored by several women of the Library Board, including Mrs. Lewis C. Scheffey and Miss Meribeth Delaplaine, of Merion, and Mrs. Charles Sykes, of Cynwyd.

Since the demonstration, the Scouts in groups of six or eight, have been working at least one afternoon a week, under the guidance of one of the adults, at mending and rebinding the books which have been donated to the Library for the Victory Book Drive. In this way, the Scouts feel that they have been using a learned skill in giving service to the community.

DR. POLING TO BE VESPER SPEAKER

Noted Minister Has Just Returned from London and Africa

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, Pastor of Grace Baptist Temple, Broad and Berks Sts., Philadelphia, will be the guest speaker at a Vespers service on May 9 at 4 P. M. in the Bala-Cynwyd Methodist Church, Levering Mill Rd. near Montgomery Ave., Bala-Cynwyd.

The Rev. Franklin Duncumbe is pastor of the church. Dr. Poling, who is a Major in the Army Chaplains Corps, has just returned from a special mission to London and North Africa, where he saw many men from Philadelphia and its suburbs fighting in the front lines.

The Vespers service will be of a patriotic nature as well as to honor Mothers Day.

When he left the battlefield, Dr. Poling says, the Allies had gained air superiority, and he often saw at dawn "the skies humming with the throb of American planes swarming over the horizons from every direction" and "the forward march of men and machines through the fields bursting with wild flowers of Spring."

By LYTLE HULL

All the great material inventions of the last hundred years, added together, don't compare in human value to the incredible discoveries of the medical scientists.

One hundred years ago we crossed the ocean—when we did cross it—in sailing ships. We crossed the great plains of the West in prairie schooners. When we had to communicate with anyone who was out of earshot, we did so by letters which were carried by stagecoach or by mounted rider. When we plowed our fields our only power was old Dobbin. When we pulled down the shades in the evening, we lived by lamp or candle light. Stoves and open fireplaces were the only means we had for keeping the house warm, and what we call "plumbing" was undreamed of.

We didn't have electrical appliances in those days, or automobiles or airplanes; but we did have smallpox and diphtheria and bubonic plague and typhus and typhoid and yellow fever, and we didn't know much about preventing them or curing them.

One hundred years ago a man was "middle-aged" at 40 and usually died before he reached the age of 60. If he lived to 80 he was almost a "museum piece." Today we literally play football until we are 40, baseball up to 50, tennis to 60 and golf to 75.

In the last 100 years medical scientists have lengthened the span of life for the adult by from 15 to 25 years. What they have done for the infant is almost more miraculous. Modern hygienic methods have so improved the health of the infant, from the day it is conceived until it reaches manhood, that the human foundation is far more solid and healthy than of old. But still more contributive to long life, are the cures and preventives which these great students have brought to light. A hundred years ago diabetes was fatal. Today it is a bore. Diphtheria was the terror of every parent. Today it is a comparatively unimportant danger. Smallpox is unheard of in civilized society. Typhus has been banished to distant shores. Typhoid is becoming rarer. Tuberculosis—once fatal—is now under almost complete control, and the sulfa drugs are performing miracles in the curb of pneumonia. Medical science is still struggling with the mysteries of dread cancer, but many believe the discovery of its prevention and cure to be but a matter of time.

Some day—some day—we should be able to prevent inoculation by any germ which is foreign to the human body, and where the human body does become inoculated we should be definitely able to destroy the cause. When that day comes we may live for a hundred years and more, because there should be so few "outside" causes for death. It would seem that accidents, internal troubles, the circulatory system and each other, would be life's only remaining threats. Accidents have gained on us in recent decades; adjustment of

Today more and more people appear to be dying from heart troubles. This is because we are living 20 years longer than disease allowed us to a hundred years ago, and the heart has not adjusted itself to this comparatively rapid change. The circulatory system will improve slowly as the fundamental health of humanity becomes more robust through preventive, hygienic and scientific living and eating.
